RENEWABLE ENERGY FOR THE 21ST CENTURY

The American Recovery and Reinvestment Plan is the most ambitious economic recovery program since the Great Depression. The cornerstone of the Recovery Act is the preservation and creation of jobs, particularly in the areas of infrastructure improvement, building retrofitting and renewable energy, through the massive mobilization of the construction and manufacturing industries.

TOPICS COVERED

"Constructing the Economic Recovery," is a conference and trade show specially designed for the real estate and construction industries and will present details of the Recovery Act, its implementation at the Federal, State and City levels and new construction opportunities.

WHO SHOULD ATTEND

The conference will provide critical information for contractors, private, public and institutional real estate owners, lenders, investors, facility managers, corporate and institutional tenants, architects, engineers, project managers, and all related construction industry professionals.
